More than one devout Democratic newspaper has noticed that Mr. Grover in the storm of Saturday. Cleveland before the election and Mr. Grover Cleveland since the election are very different persons. The ante-election Cleveland opened not his mouth; for aught an expectant party knew he was not in the country, but had wandered off to some unfreso seriously burned that he died at the quented corner of the globe in search of something to reform. The post-election Cleveland opened his mouth right after the election and his invention.

Cleveland had played oyster. Hill had gone about over the country playing parrot, crying "the tariff is a tax," and otherwise whooping it up for the Free Trade doctrine of the British party in over America. Cleveland does not seem to have heard of Hill in the campaign, and he would fain have the Democratic party forget that there is such a man as Hill, or any other man than Cleveland.

The party is not unanimously dispose to take Mr. Cleveland's view of himself and the rest of the big-wigs of Democracy, and the voice of resentment grows louder. Nevertheless Cleveland seems to lead the procession of Free Traders. and in view of his great luck in conventions it would be hazardous to say that he will not capture the nomination. His career has been a great triumph for bulk.

The State Line Road. The County Commissioners agree to submit the State Line Railroad proposition with a condition which in fact knocks the subscription in the head. The railroad company has said frankly that it cannot guarantee to give Wheeling coke at the same rate as the Pittsburgh rate, so that to couple this requirement with the resolution is the same as to decline to have anything to do with the project.

If the road could give the coke guarantee there would be no trouble to sethat independent of any value the State cure the subscription. But it is argued Line road may have as an additional coke road would be its value in the de velopment of a rich coal and agricultural region, now practically shut out of the market, and a large part of the trade of which would naturally flow to Wheeling. There is force in this view. It is further to be said that it would be a very small thing in the railroad way that would not be worth $160,060 to

Ohio county, seeing how much money would be spent in the county and how much would remain here in the way of permanent investment. The subscripion is not payable until the road is here.

The petition asking the Commission ers to submit the question was signed by county, and it was not handicapped by the coke stipulation, which is the most Transfers Recorded.
